Anti-Bullying Week 2021

Yesterday, I ate 2 apples for my dessert.
They were juicy and delicious.

Today, my apples weren't so lovely.
When I munched the first one, yes, it was great. But the second one ...
yuck! 😞

So, I decided to cut each apple in half, and noticed something very interesting. Can you see the difference between the insides of the 2 apples?

Yes, one is rotten inside. But hold on – on the outside, both apples looked fine.

What does this have to do with Anti-Bullying Week?

Well, on the outside, we all look similar – we have 2 eyes, 2 arms, a school uniform ... but inside, some of us might be hurting. We can't see it and we may not know why.

So what does this mean for us all in school?
(Have a short think and discussion with your class.)

Is there a moral or message here? Yes. We may not know, or even who, somebody is hurting, but we do know we must always be kind.

Remember, things aren't always what they seem on the outside.
